If Joint Hall Talks Fail

Ash Seeks Dissolution Of Saanich Municipality

REEVE RUPERT BROWN OF CENTRAL SAANICH . . . "neutral."

MAYOR PERCY SCURRAH . . . cautious.

Two Neighbors Would Split Area

By DAVID BROWN

Dissolution of Saanich was suggested last night by Reeve Arthur Ash as one of two alternatives should no agreement be reached in talks with Victoria on a joint municipal hall.

In his inaugural address to council the reeve uncovered a radical plan which would see Saanich give up as a separate and struggling municipality by dividing itself in two. The urban half would be absorbed by the city, the northern half by the maverick municipality of Central Saanich.

The suggestion—first of the bombshells tossed out to Saanich councillors—was put forward as a possible course should joint hall talks collapse.

The reeve's other alternative called for erection of an addition to the old Royal Oak hall.

The second explosion came when Reeve Ash announced that his first term in office would be his last.

He will not seek re-election in December.

The reeve also lashed out hard at "petty parochialism in the Greater Victoria area.

Dissolution of Saanich would correct many mistakes made in the past, the reeve said.

Created in Haste

The Central Saanich boundaries were created in haste without giving due consideration to the territory north of Royal Oak or Elk Lake, which is rural in character, he said.

"Consequently, many people of the rural section . . . feel they have been neglected and are contributing towards services supplied in the urban sections, while many urban dwellers feel the rural section is a liability."

The reeve said he was well aware that such a plan would meet opposition "in and out of council."

"However, if we are prepared to meet our responsibilities as elected representatives and bury prejudice and parochialism and study the problem, I see no reason why a plan could not be formulated and presented to the ratepayers," he said.

"We should not bloat ourselves with a feeling that we are better off on our own," he added.

"In the matter of taxation, whether we like it or not, taxes will continue to climb in Saanich, not because we want them to, but because in the past we failed to construct and plan ahead."

Because of shortsighted policies in the past, problems to be faced are multiplying, he said, as he struck a blow for the cause of amalgamation.

"We are steadily building up separate police and fire forces, and various other civic departments that could well be amalgamated. There is no strong bond of co-operation between the four municipalities in this area.

"We refuse to recognize the problem of an over-all sewer

Probe Sought

Canada Losing In Gas Sale To U.S. Firms

Highlight of the session of Parliament opening in Ottawa today is expected to be an opposition demand for an immediate probe into Trans Canada's pipeline to feed natural gas to Eastern Canada and a large section of the United States.

Basis of the demand for a probe is a report that Tennessee Gas Transmission Co., which has a 20-year contract to buy Canadian gas at 25.8 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, will be buying its gas "below the market" and re-selling to huge midwest firms with a substantial "middleman" profit, as well as its normal profit, from its own distribution system.

Three middle west firms and Tennessee—formerly bitter opponents—are reported ready to bury the hatchet and make a joint application, thus providing a unified front to the United States Federal Power Commission and ensuring a permit to import the gas.

READY TO PAY

The middle west firms were ready to pay 30 cents earlier, and probably would go higher now. But the joint application would kill any hope of a higher price for Canada's natural resources.

Net result would be a loss between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000 to Canada in the next 20 years.

Three midwest firms involved are the American Natural Gas Company of Detroit, People's Gas, Light and Coke Co. of Chicago, and Northern Natural Gas of Minneapolis. These three have been fighting Tennessee for Trans-Canada's surplus natural gas. Now all four apparently are joining hands in a move that Canadian oilmen say will "cost the public of Canada millions."

The basic fact that now disturbs Cnadians is that midwest oil companies were ready to pay between 30 and 35 cents to Canadian natural gas producers. Under the new plan gas would be sold at 25.8 cents.

John Diefenbaker, leader of the Progressive Conservative party and one of the leaders against the government's subsidy of Trans Canada, told The Colonist last night that he had not heard of the U.S. companies' "plot."

But the matter would receive his party's immediate attention, the new Tory leader said.

'DEEP CONCERN'

"The pipeline situation is still of deep concern to the Conservative Party," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

In Parliament last summer, Mr. Diefenbaker repeatedly said that the contract price offered by Tennessee was inadequate and below the market value.

"The government poohpoohed this suggestion," he added.

Acceptance by the government of Tennessee as the U.S. outlet for Trans Canada (in which Tennessee holds a large interest) surprised Canadian oilmen.

Now, on the eve of a new session of parliament, much new background to last year's stormy pipeline issue is becoming public.

Reaction to Ash

Scurrah Cautious, Brown 'Neutral'

Mayor Percy Scurrah was cautious and Central Saanich Reeve Rupert Brown "neutral" on the "split-Saanich" suggestion in Reeve Arthur Ash's inauguration meeting address.

The mayor said there was merit in suggested unification of police and fire services, and if it came about that such a division of the municipality was likely to happen, "it would be well worth exploring and giving consideration to it."

Central Saanich, which was originally carved from the northern wards of Saanich, can offer very low taxes, Reeve Brown said, adding that he knew of many residents of the former Ward Five district of Saanich (Royal Oak and Cordova Bay) who would now like to join Central Saanich.

It would be up to council and the people of Central Saanich to decide, he said. "I wouldn't have any objections."

Can't Get Action

Smith, Council Trade Blows In Battle Over Business Tax

Hot words were flung back and forth last night as Ald. J. Donald Smith sought, unsuccessfully, immediate city council action to implement his trades-licensing and business-tax recommendations.

In the end, council referred his report to the new trades-licensing committee appointed last night by the mayor, headed by Ald. Smith and including Aldermen Curtis and Elmer McEwen.

But there were storms before that happened.

Ald. Smith recommended that a graduated business tax be instituted and the additional revenue included in the 1957 budget, that the city manager be instructed to draft a suitable by-law, and that a committee be available to assist in redrafting the present trades licence by-law.

CURTIS EXPLAINS

His one-man report was tabled while council heard a letter from Ald. Curtis, the only other member of the trades-licensing committee in 1956, saying that he couldn't sign the report because two persons had been promised at a public hearing that they would have an opportunity to make submissions and hadn't been given it.

Council also heard a letter from the Chamber of Commerce asking for opportunity for the chamber and individual firms to be heard.

Mayor Percy Scurrah then interjected that he would suggest that firms be asked to take out trades licences as usual pending possible changes, and be credited with the amount paid, and the whole matter referred to the new committee.

Ald. Smith objected that the mayor was out of order, and moved that the report be lifted from the table.

The mayor put the question and declared the motion carried, but Ald. Curtis asserted that he had been on his feet and ready to speak against it, and after some debate with Ald. Smith, the mayor ruled it not carried.

Ald. Curtis said he had not signed the report because two individuals had not had the opportunity they were promised to make submissions.

"That's about the fifth excuse Ald. Curtis has presented me as a reason for not signing the report," Ald. Smith said, which Ald. Curtis angrily denied.

Ald. Smith said the two persons in question were Elgin Neish, who had been quite satisfied after the public hearing, and a member o fthe "so-called watchdog committee" of the Chamber of Commerce, who had said his firm would be happy to pay more money if the city asked for it.

School Drive Spending Hit

City council will advise the Greater Victoria school board that it "views with concern" a suggestion that public funds were used by the board to influence voters in the school construction by-law referendum in December.

The suggestion was made in a letter received by council last night from former alderman Robert Macmillan, writing as a citizen and taxpayer.

There had been a considerable volume of advertising by school trustees in an attempt "perhaps regrettably unsuccessful" to persuade the voters to pass the $5,600,000 by-law, Mr. Macmillan said.

There was a principle at stake, he suggested, and democratic processes could be undermined. He questioned the propriety of "using the taxpayers' money to influence the taxpayers' vote."

The city solicitor, he added, might well be asked to investigate the propriety of the school board's actions and the possibility of obtaining repayment from the trustees.

Council unanimously passed a motion by Ald. Austin Curtis that the city clerk be instructed to forward a copy of Mr. Macmillan's letter to the board, advise the board of the council's concern and inquire if the allegations were correct.

Winter's Here Again

Snow and cold weather for the next three or four days is the outlook for Victoria and the rest of Vancouver Island.

Weatherman William Mackie said last night that snow should start falling about dawn this morning, and by 10.30 last night mixed rain and snow was falling on Victoria.

Three to five inches of snow is expected to fall on Victoria today.

Temperature, which was 37 at 10.30 last night, was skidding and is expected to keep on going down to the low 20s today. If the skies clear, Victoria can expect temperatures in the teens in the next two or three days, Mr. Mackie said.

Winds are expected to reach northeast 25 by noon today.

Snow started falling on Nanaimo about 7 last night and by midnight nearly one inch of snow covered the roads. Driving was hazardous.

Officials Prepare

For Feb. 7 Session

Important Legislation Polished

By PETER BRUTON

Senior provincial government officials are working late every night to put finishing touches to legislation planned for introduction at the spring session of the legislature which opens Feb. 7.

Important legislation to be considered will probably include a pay boost for cabinet ministers and members, a completely revised Municipal Act, the $28 homeowners' tax rebate, creation of further cabinet posts, and appropriation of funds for the construction of a new Victoria courthouse.

Political observers believe the long-awaited Sloan report on forestry will be brought down either just before or during the session and that any legislation required will be considered promptly.

A record budget, in excess of last year's $258,000,000, has already been promised and the tremendous program of highway and bridge construction which has taken place in recent years may be expected to continue.

It is considered unlikely there will be a general tax reduction.

The session promises to be a gala occasion for the victory-flushed Social Credit government. In the 52-seat legislature Social Credit will have 39 members, the CCF 10, the Liberals two, and fiery independent Tony Uphill of Fernie will be back again. There will be 16 new faces.

Social Crediters can be expected to be on their best behavior as they make an all-out effort to create a favorable impression for the federal election, rumored for June.

On the other hand, the greatly-reduced opposition will be on the lookout for chinks in the Socred armor in which to drive the spears of criticism. Opposition members will probably concentrate the brunt of their attack once again on the government's handling of the Sommers case, still to come to trial.

Perhaps the most controversial legislation is that of the government's announced decision to pay the first $28 on every homeowners' tax bill.

This rebate will cost an estimated $8,000,000 and, according to officials, will come from revenue derived from the development of B.C.'s resources.

The sessional income for MLAs will be upped from the present $3,600 to $5,000, cabinet ministers will receive a salary boost of $5,000 up to $12,500, while the premier's pay will be raised to $15,000 from $9,000 a year. Salary increases for cabinet ministers and the premier has been urged from both sides of the House.

More than 900 sections will make up the new Municipal Act which has been completely revised during the past 12 months. Some of the more important sections include provision for a better system of levying business taxes, creation of three-year terms for councillors instead of the present two years, and changing the fiscal year for municipalities from the present Dec. 31 closing to March 31.

Establishment of departments of retail affairs, another of youth affairs, and one of recreation, including game and tourism, are believed to be likely.

Missing from the legislature this session will be a number of familiar faces—Mrs. Lydia Arsens, Liberal leader Arthur Laing, Dr. Larry Giovando of Nanaimo, former Opposition Leader Arnold Webster, to name a few.

More than 350 invitations have been sent out for the opening of the session for those on the protocol list.

These invitations, which go to positions not people, are sent to heads of the church, judiciary, armed services, senators, MPs, and consuls. Members have the privilege of inviting two personal guests.

This leaves about 70 seats for Speaker-designate Thomas Irwin to dispose of in every electoral riding.

There are also about 115 seats in the public galleries and these will be issued on a first-come first-served basis an hour before the session starts.

Hearing Delayed In Two Trials

Two trials were remanded in city police court yesterday, one until Jan. 23 to fix date for continuance, and the other for two days.

First was the trial of Gordon H. Smith of Salmon Arm on a charge of failing to heed the siren of an emergency vehicle. On Dec. 27 his car was in collision with the police ambulance at the corner of Bay and Cook.

All witnesses were heard in this case except Mr. Smith's father, still in hospital with injuries sustained in the crash.

Second trial adjourned was that of Murray Freeman Swayze, 580 Head, on a charge of impaired driving.

Adjournment here came after presentation of prosecution testimony, when it was clear that hearing of defence witnesses would keep court through the noon hour. Trial will resume Wednesday.

Harry E. Partridge, 234 Russell, pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving before Magistrate Henry C. Hall. He had been involved in an accident Dec. 20 at 6.15 p.m. when his car, heading south on Wharf turned east onto Yates and collided with the front of another vehicle.

He was fined $35.

* * *

Terrence G. L. Hayes of Gibbons Road, Duncan, who said it had been his first experience at driving in the city, found his misadventure of Dec. 18 costly.

He was charged with careless driving when his car, heading south on Government, turned east onto Belleville and bumped three pedestrians. Hayes told police he hadn't seen them.

He was fined $10 and his driver's licence was suspended.

Garden Notes

How to Have A Good Time

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

I wonder if there is any more satisfying job in gardening than to sit in a comfortable armchair in front of a crackling log fire and study the new seed catalogues? There is such fairy magic in their pages; every pea, every tomato, is the finest ever.

Pansies and Antirrhinums are guaranteed to be the biggest ever produced, and with the finest coloring. How does one make a choice from such extravagantly-described varieties?

Many of the seed firms we deal with have made outstanding names for themselves in one thing or another: Dobbie's of Edinburgh and the Crossland Brothers of Duncan for sweet peas, Laxton's for garden peas, Burpee's for zinnias, Jan de Graaff for lilies, Allwood Bros. for anything in the carnation and pink line, Blackmore and Langdon of England and Reinalt of California for delphiniums, our own Swan Lake Nursery for tuberous begonias. All of these firms, in addition to the plants in which they specialize, stock and sell standard varieties of garden seeds.

If you are one of those gardeners who don't have a clue as to what variety of pea or zinnia or snapdragon to order, here is a hint which works pretty well: Send for a lot of catalogues from a lot of seedsmen, then order such varieties as are listed by all of them. This is playing it safe, but if a named variety of pea or lettuce is good enough to find a place in a lot of catalogues, it is reasonably sure to do well in your garden.

What about the seeds left over from last year? Can they be sown this spring with any hope of success? Generally speaking, for vegetable seeds the answer is "yes," always provinding that they have been stored under reasonably favorable conditions.

The hard-seeded peas, beans, radishes and cabbage seeds are good for eight to 10 years, squash, marrow, pumpkin and cucumber three to five years, and even the small seeds like lettuce and carrots remain viable for two to three years under good storage.

Most of the flower seeds are smaller and more delicate, although hard-coated seeds like lupins and sweet peas are fairly safe to sow up to four years old. Tagetes, French marigolds and petunias are practically useless after a year in storage.

Primula and poppy seed germinates strongly when fresh from the parent plant, but hangs fire in an infuriating fashion after even a single season in storage, while pansy and viola seed actually performs better when it is a year old than when fresh.

As you see, there is no hard and fast rule for the storing qualities of seeds except, in a general way, the larger the seed and the harder the seed coat, the longer will the seed remain viable.

OLDEST SEEDS

The oldest seeds on record to have sprouted are some specimens of Albizzia seed in the British Museum, collected 147 years earlier in China, which started to grow when wetted by the firemen's hoses during the German air raids of 1940.

Rather than waste valuable time in the spring sowing seed of unknown viability, it is a good idea to test such doubtful seeds for germination. All you need do is to place a definate number of the seeds on a square of dampened flannel in a saucer and count the percentage of them which sprout. Anything better than 60 per cent is safe to use in the garden.

Four Firms Join Forces . . . . . . To Swing Huge 'Deal'

Canada Foots Bill for Cut-Rate Gas in U.S.

Last year, Mr. Howe steadily refused to allow sale of Canadian gas to the U.S. pipeline companies whose licences are good for the territory along the Canadian-U.S. border.

Instead, Tennessee will build a 700-mile pipeline from Emer- [illegible] its marketing area in the south-central United States.

By-passed companies, including those named above, have been appealing to Mr. Howe and other Canadian authorities for the right to purchase Canadian gas. And they have been reported since the first as willing to pay more than 30 cents per thousand cubic feet for it.

If no change can be made in the deal at this date—and if the Federal Power Commission approves the importation—then Canadian producers will lose between $10,000,000 and $20,000,000 a year during the 20 years of the contract.

Canadian royalties based on the selling price also will be substantially lower.

Had the original agreement been made with the logical market in the midwest, observers feel, Trans Canada would have had sufficient funds and income to complete its line to the Toronto-Montreal area without having to borrow money, as it did, from the Canadian government.

Four Losers

Under today's setup, Canada will be a four-time loser: through her gas consumers; her taxpayers across the nation; Prairie gas producers, and the national economy, which needs U.S. dollars to meet the huge trade deficit.

Some Canadian economists feel that three years of delay, and many blunders from the start, are responsible for the situation.

And the situation could get worse, since there is no guarantee that Trans Canada could not become a fully-owned U.S. company. At present, the Canadian company's policy is largely shaped by men such as Charles S. Coates, its executive vice-president and general manager, who was for many years a top officer of Tennessee.

Although Ottawa's burning desire from the first was to ensure an all-Canadian pipeline that would adequately serve Eastern Canada—and many of the problems devolved from this—Tennessee's main idea was to stage a costly invasion of the territory of the gas distributors of the Midwest. To do this, Tennessee would need cheap gas.

True Value

As the deal unfolded, the company got 200,000,000 cubic feet at 25.8 cents per thousand cubic feet. Observers now are confident that the true value some time ago was 30 cents—which was actually offered from the Midwest—and that that value now is at least 32 cents, and perhaps 35.

The full background to the situation as it developed—first in the United States and then in Canada—follows:

The Tennessee Co.'s invasion instantly involved it in a struggle with the Big Three of the American middle west—the American Natural Gas Co., the People's Gas, Light & Coke Co., and the Northern Natural Gas Co., which serve such key population centres as Omaha, Minneapolis, Chicago, Detroit, Milwaukee, and surrounding areas.

The Big Three regarded Tennessee as an invader of this established territory and launched a powerful campaign to crush the invasion.

Get Together

They went before the American Federal Power Commission, which must authorize any import of Canadian gas, and opposed Tennessee's application for such a permit.

It became clear at once that the argument between these titans would hold up a decision by the Power Commission for several years.

But reports from New York yesterday indicated that the four companies might get together in supporting the import permit for Tennessee. No announcement of such an arrangement is expected and none would be necessary to carry through the joint deal.

It is only necessary for the Big Three to withdraw their opposition to Tennessee's application now before the Power Commission and then, it is expected, the import permit would be approved without delay.

Risk of Upset

Whether the four companies can get together or not, Tennessee intends to pay only 25.8 cents for Alberta gas, but objections to this price could upset all its plans.

While its American associates were pressing the Power Commission for an import permit, Trans Canada had fallen into a desperate situation.

It had promised C. D. Howe, minister of trade and commerce, some three years ago that it could build the all-Canadian pipeline out of its own resources and with no help whatever from the government.

Given Time

But it soon found that its scheme could not be financed by private enterprise alone. While attempting to raise funds in Canada and the U.S. it sought, and was given, a series of extensions in its permit to build the pipeline. Still it could not find the necessary funds and by the spring of 1955 asked the Canadian government to underwrite its borrowings from the public.

Mr. Howe urged the cabinet at Ottawa to guarantee the company's bonds but after a prolonged argument Mr. Howe was turned down by his colleagues, headed by Finance Minister Walter Harris. Mr. Howe threatened to resign but was persuaded, with some difficulty, to remain in office. The problem of Trans Canada remained unsolved throughout 1955 and reached a climax in the early part of 1956.

While Trans Canada thus was unable to fulfill its promise to Mr. Howe, another alternative developed.

By Canadians

In a "personal and confidential" memorandum to Mr. Howe the millionaire Calgary oil and gas executive, Frank McMahon, declared that an all-Canadian pipeline could be built by Canadians without any government aid. If Trans Canada could not do the job, Mr. McMahon said, he would. He offered to post a personal performance bond of $500,000.

Mr. Howe refused to produce this memorandum in parliament on the ground that it was "personal and confidential." Anxious to proceed with the Trans Canada project, which had become a matter of personal prestige to him, Mr. Howe persuaded Mr. McMahon to withdraw his offer.

Valid Offer

That offer was always valid, was fully financed and was Canadian.

In a memorandum called "The Basic Faults of the Trans Canada Plan," Mr. McMahon had written:

"Trans Canada, as presently constituted, is controlled by U.S. financial interests and is dominated by the Tennessee Gas Transmission Co., so that the principal interest behind Canada's pipeline is dealing with itself as the principal purchaser in the United States.

"Trans Canada, so influenced and dominated, proposes an uneconomic plan to favor Tennessee Gas to the detriment of Canada and, at the same time, requests the governments of Canada and Ontario to subsidize a $122,000,000 pipeline bridge across northern Ontario in order to make it possible to put the proposal into effect. . . Trans Canada proposes to sell its gas to a company which cannot pay a fair price because it does not control the market. . ."

Pay More

Mr. McMahon, in his plan for the Canadian pipeline, proposed to sell part of its gas to the Big Three of the American middle west and said that they "are able and willing to pay almost five cents per 1,000 cubic feet more for surplus Canadian gas at Emerson than the Tennessee Co. has contracted to pay Trans Canada during the early years of operation, when markets in Canada are being developed and revenue from the U.S. is sorely needed to make the Canadian pipeline economically feasible."

Asked yesterday if he still considered the Trans Canada-Tennessee deal improvident or whether he had changed his mind, Mr. McMahon said:

"My original views are unchanged. This is a bad deal for Canada, it has been completely misunderstood by the Canadian people and was grossly misrepresented to the Canadian government.

'Huge Loss'

"Through this deal the Canadian gas producers are losing huge sums of money that they could easily secure under another deal, providing them with a much higher price.

"The Canadian taxpayers can avoid subsidizing the northern Ontario bridge to the extent of about $130,000,000.

"Finally, the higher price which the Canadian exporting company can secure for gas from American purchasers, the better its financial position will be and therefore the better its ability to offer Canadian consumers the lowest possible price for gas. As the deal stands, however, all these possible advantages will be lost to gas consumers, gas producers and Canadian taxpayers."

Determined

Having rejected the McMahon offer — and apparently once again master of the situation in Ottawa—Mr. Howe was determined to get the pipeline under way before mid-summer and to drive it on to Winnipeg before Christmas, 1956.

He suddenly confronted his colleagues early last year with a proposal to loan Trans Canada $80,000,000 to finance the prairie section of the pipeline. In addition, the Federal and Ontario governments in co-operation had agreed to finance the relatively unprofitable northern Ontario "bridge" in the amount of approximately $130,000,000.

Thus the Canadian and Ontario treasuries were asked to invest $210,000,000 in the whole project, although the original $80,000,000 was repayable before the northern Ontario subsidy could be granted.

Epic Debate

When Mr. Howe fought this scheme through a divided cabinet and presented it to parliament the epic pipeline debate of last summer ensued.

Work had not been under way for many weeks before Mr. Howe discovered that he had been misled in believing that Trans Canada, alone among North American gas companies, could get an immediate supply of pipe in the U.S., where industry was then paralyzed by a strike.

Actually Trans Canada did not possess this pipe, as Mr. Howe was told.

However, it managed to secure enough pipe to build a third of the prairie section before winter stopped all work. But the line did not reach Winnipeg by Christmas as Mr. Howe expected, and now may not reach it before next Christmas.

Financing

To date, Trans Canada has raised $16,000,000. The government of Canada has already loaned the line $80,000,000 and agreed, with the Ontario government, to finance another $130,000,000 for the northern Ontario section.

The hour of decision in this continental struggle for Canadian gas is immediately at hand.

Within some two weeks Trans Canada must go before the conservation authorities of Alberta and secure final ratification of its permit to buy Alberta gas.

Before February 1 the Board of Transport Commissioners in Ottawa will hear an application from Trans Canada for the latest of seven extensions of its pipeline arrangements and producer contracts must be concluded by that time. Lacking such arrangements, another extension seems improbable. In that case the whole Trans Canada scheme might collapse.

Today parliament will meet and it is certain that the government will face strong opposition to its entire gas policy. A repetition of last year's bitter gas debate appears likely.

Crisis Nears

In this tense situation, now nearing its crisis, Mr. Howe has three options:

(1) He can drive through the present Trans Canada deal despite the censure of the Opposition and the objection of the Alberta gas producers, who demand a higher price for their gas.

(2) He can compel Trans Canada to abandon its arrangements with Tennessee and make a better deal for Canada with the Big Three or some other gas purchaser.

(3) If on April 2, when Trans Canada's loan of $80,000,000 from the Canadian government comes due, this money is not paid to the national treasury, Mr. Howe can take over the whole pipeline project, including the prairie section now partly built. The government will then find itself in the gas business — a prospect which it regards as an economic and political nightmare.

Robert H. Green Reappointed

Reappointment of Robert H. Green, 2099 Lansdowne Road, to the Equalization Assessment Board was approved yesterday by the B.C. cabinet. Other members reappointed for a further one-year term were Kenneth R. Beckett of Vancouver and William Beamish, Burnaby.

CENTRAL SAANICH—Reeve Rupert Brown and Councillors Harry Peard and John Windsor were sworn in as members of the Central Saanich municipal council last night. All three served last year.

Reeve Brown told council there would be no change in policy for this year.

House Opens Today

Coming Session Full of Promise

OTTAWA (BUP)—The government prepared to go before a pre-election session of parliament today with a [illegible] electorate.

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, emerging from a session-eve cabinet meeting yesterday, declared his government planned no firm action to end the strike, now in its sixth day, of 2,800 Canadian Pacific Railway enginemen and firemen.

His government, in 1950, sponsored strike-breaking compulsory arbitration legislation in a special session to end a nine-day strike on both the CPR and the state-owned Canadian National Railway, and threatened to use it again in 1953 in the face of another strike threat. But with a general election expected next June, the government was anxious to avoid being tagged as anti-labor again.

"We came to the conclusion that there was still a possibility of negotiation, and we are going to encourage that possibility in every way we can," Mr. St. Laurent told reporters after the cabinet meeting.

"We plan no other intervention, other than our attempt to be as helpful as we can."

The Throne Speech was expected to remind parliament—and the voters—that Canada had a record-breaking boom in 1956 and looked forward to even better times in the new year. The report of the royal commission on Canada's economic prospects in the next quarter century will be put before parliament not later than Thursday.

New legislation coming up in the session will establish the long-expected Canada Council to encourage the arts, letters and sciences, and to double the current $8,000,000 annual grants to universities.

Financially, the new session is expected to be marked by promises of tax cuts, timed to become effective just before election day, and increased social security benefits.

Gordon Commission Report

Good Times Forecast

OTTAWA (CP) — Rising national wealth, higher pay and shorter work hours likely will be outlined by the Gordon royal commission in its forecast of the Canadian economy over the next 25 years.

The report, 18 months in the making and the first of its kind, is scheduled to be made public in Parliament Thursday. Undoubtedly it will be studied with policy recommendations which may well become the basis of the Liberal government's platform in the next general election.

Included may be proposals for ridding Canada of a chronic wheat surplus, reducing foreign ownership of key Canadian industries, reviving the economically - depressed Maritimes, and aiding municipalities which over the next quarter - century may require possibly up to $100,000,000,000 in social capital — housing, schools, water and other facilities.

But while the document may devote attention to the problems and possible means of resolving them, the main concentration likely will be on the more optimistic side, on the growth of industry and its impact on Canadian lives.

From evidence it heard it appears the commission may conclude that:

1. The gross national product—value of all goods and services produced—may more than double in 25 years to some $75,000,000,000 or $76,000,000,000 from the high of $29,700,000,000 achieved in 1956.

2. Real earnings of the average worker — that is, excluding possible inflationary rises — may climb by some 70 or 75 per cent.

3. Average hours of work may decline to about 31 a week from the current 43.

4. Population may increase by some 10,000,000 to around 26,000,000. The labor force may almost double to around 9,000,000 or so from 5,300,000.

5. Farm production may increase but this rise may be much smaller than in other industries. As a result the proportion of overall Canadian production coming from agriculture may drop from the current 13 per cent to about one-half that percentage.

Speed Approval, Congress Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dulles said Monday the consequences would be "quite disastrous" if Congress should not go along with President Eisenhower's proposals for averting aggression in the Middle East.

Dulles made the statement during 4½ hours of testimony before the House of Representatives foreign affairs committee, as it opened hearings on Eisenhower's request for advance authority to use United States military forces if necessary to block Communist aggression.

The secretary said Congress can do its utmost "for peace and freedom" only by quickly approving Eisenhower's program for the Middle East.

As if in response, committee chairman Thomas Gordon (Dem. Ill.) announced a speedup. He predicted floor action in the house by two weeks.

In the Senate arrangements were made for hearings late this week or early next week.

Dulles testified before a jam-packed hearing Monday. Today the doors will be closed when he returns for further testimony along with Admiral Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff.

Tim Buck Challenged

TORONTO (CP)—A group of high-ranking Canadian Communists has challenged the leadership of Tim Buck, head of the Labor-Progressive Party.

Led by J. B. Salsberg of Toronto, they have published a letter in the party's monthly journal, National Affairs, which discloses they tried to unseat the 64-year-old leader at a national executive committee meeting three months ago.

A party member close to Mr. Buck's challengers says the battle line is clearly drawn.

If Mr. Buck and his followers don't renounce the Soviet party line, the dissidents will try to overthrow them at the party's national convention here April 19.

The letter in National Affairs is signed by Mr. Salsberg, a former member of the Ontario legislature; Ontario party leader Stewart Smith and Harry Binder. It tells how these three, together with two other national committee members, Norman Penner and Steve Endicott, voted for the resignation of Mr. Buck at an executive meeting Oct. 22.

The anti-Buck element blames the resignations—and the party's general unpopularity—on subordination to Soviet policy. The letter says.

"What worries Canadian workers about our viewpoint is that they link our conception of democracy with that of the Soviet Union. They feel that we Communists would do away with all opposing viewpoints, with all other parties, as they did in the U. S. S. R. They fear that differences with the party would not be tolerated as has been the case in the U. S. S. R. and in Hungary, for example."

MPs Singled Out

Kadar Begins Purge

BUDAPEST (UP)—The government of Premier Janos Kadar yesterday began its threatened crackdown against those opposing it.

The government-controlled press hinted broadly that along with arrests of die-hard rebels, the Hungarian parliament would be purged.

"An inquiry is in progress into the conduct of members of parliament following the events of Oct. 23," the newspaper Esti Hirlap said. Oct. 23 was the day the uprising began.

Russian tanks parked in the streets lent steel to the edicts of the pro-Soviet Kadar regime. But no increase in the usual number of tanks was noted.

Observers expected a wide purge based on the government's denunciation of exiled Premier Imre Nagy as a "traitor" and its threat of "severest punishment" for those who resist it.

The purge was expected to be heaviest in parliament.

Esti Hirlap said lists were being drawn up "of members of parliament who remained in the country and others who went abroad."

An investigating committee will "present a motion at the session of parliament regarding those members who are to be deprived of their seats," the paper said.

Not Haughty Under Collar

LONDON (Reuters) — A Church of England vicar complains in a letter to the Sunday Pictorial that people avoid his priest's collar "like the plague."

Rev. John Hornby says he often has to sit alone while travelling by rail. "There is at once a hushed restraint on all conversations . . ."

He says people should start talking about Marilyn Monroe or rock 'n' roll, for "we are just plain, ordinary guys.

"The only time I found my dog-collar an advantage in public was when travelling with my wife during our engagement days," he writes. "Then the privacy I could command would have been the envy of every courting couple."

East Germans Swap Freedom for Funds

MOSCOW (UP)—Communist East Germany yesterday agreed to temporary stationing of Russian troops on its soil against the NATO "menace" in return for economic aid and complete control of air traffic to isolated Berlin.

A Russian-East German pact signed in the Kremlin granted East Germany all the rights and privileges of a sovereign state. Russia has recognized East German sovereignty since September, 1955. The West does not recognize it.

B.C. Highway Program

REFERRING to British Columbia's highway program for the coming year Hon. P. A. Gaglardi, minister of highways, indicated recently that his department contemplated a progressive drive forward with construction plans approximating $80,000,000. Undoubtedly the Trans-Canada Highway project, with the new route to obviate the Big Bend loop by a direct cut through the hills farther south, will have first claim on the program. After that there are a number of express needs on the Province's own highways, now serving a growing intensification of settlement.

In addition, this year the department will have some totally new conditions to meet. Extension of frackage on the PGE railway may necessitate construction of access and other roads to link up existing and new communities which will be served by it. On the Lower Mainland alone, Mr. Gaglardi has a complex problem in bridges and roads without the suggested crossing of the Fraser River by tunnel. Some of these things may be for the future, but a good deal will remain as the urgent requirements of the year. That embraces the primary highway system and PGE links. There remains the vast volume of area demands for local roads and secondary thoroughfares, stepped up by the influx of many more people.

With heavy ordinary and some special demands on the schedule, we trust that the Province will neither shelve nor bypass the ambitious program it has begun on Vancouver Island. The design of completing the east coast road as far as it can be taken to the north, and of driving laterals through the island to the West coast in two valleys was begun in good faith and progressively. We would ask that there be no stay of action on this design. It is a good one, and it has immediate meaning for some communities still living in partial isolation after a century of road building. After B.C.'s emergent needs are provided for, a fair share of provincial highway funds should be allocated to continue the opening up of Vancouver Island, on the stage-by-stage plan which has already been put into operation.

In terms of population, Vancouver Island is growing fast. Direct contributions to provincial revenues have been stepped up through industrial and other expansion in Island areas. Good roads and more of them where the funds are available are the most practical form of return the administration can make to those who are contributing these enhanced revenues.

Childish Discourtesy

THERE is something immature and rather silly about the policy adopted by the United States with respect to Russian ships passing through the Panama Canal, as exemplified by the unfriendly gesture towards two ships' captains last week. These ships, re-routed because of the blocking of the Suez Canal, were permitted under armed guard to pass through the Panama cut. Their masters, however, were refused charts of the Caribbean Sea, an island and reef-infested sea presenting innumerable navigational hazards. The safety of their ships was endangered thereby—and not through the misdirected zeal of some johnny-on-the-spot but on orders transmitted from Washington.

The waters of the Caribbean Sea are not territorial waters of the United States. The American authorities may be under no legal obligation to supply charts to shipmasters of foreign nations, friendly or not, but it would have been a normal act of international courtesy to have done so. The two ships were proceeding on their lawful occasions, otherwise undoubtedly they would have been detained or refused passage through the canal.

The refusal of ordinary aids to the navigation of waters free to all nations was a pointless act. Ocean charts are not security items. If espionage were the purpose of the Russian visit to Panama these ships' captains chose a peculiarly tortuous means of obtaining maps with which the Soviet government undoubtedly is amply supplied already. In hundreds of ports all over the world charts of home and foreign waters are readily available to anyone without proof of identity, nationality or anything else. In Friday Harbor or Port Angeles, for example, even the drugstores sell detailed charts of Puget Sound, probably of a good deal more strategic importance to America than the Caribbean, little of which is within U.S. jurisdiction.

America may not feel much amity towards Russia, but what is to be gained by going out of the way to be discourteous and unhelpful, needlessly imperilling the safety of shipping? Perhaps if the situation had been reversed Russian authorities would have behaved in the same way, but it should not be necessary for the West to emulate them. It is instances like this which are seized upon by Soviet propagandists to show the Western world in an unfavorable light.

Canada Humiliated

THE truth about the rejection of the Queen's Own Rifles as part of the United Nations police force in Egypt has come out, and it is as most people guessed it to be. Colonel Nasser turned his thumbs down against their employment. The evasions of Prime Minister St. Laurent on the subject in the Suez parliamentary debate—his denial that Canada would take dictation from Colonel Nasser and his excuse that the Queen's Own were held back because the UN force commander wanted a different-type component — have been set bluntly at naught.

Speaking last week, not thousands of miles away but in Ottawa and after having called on the prime minister, the secretary-general of the Arab League, Mr. Abdul Khalik Hassouna, spilled the beans. Egypt objected to the QOR's because of their name; any other regiment would have been welcomed whose name did not not associate it with the Queen, he said.

In the House of Commons debate Mr. St. Laurent defended the regiment's name, saying it was a "glorious battalion" and that it was the "Queen of Canada's Own Rifles." That was fine lip service, but there it ended. He bowed meekly to Colonel Nasser's ruling and the Queen's Own stayed at home.

Any difficulty the Arab leaders have had in explaining to their people the difference between British and Canadian troops was surely Egypt's business, not Canada's. This country's right to send what units it pleases on military service should be questioned by no nation on earth, let alone an upstart dictator. Canada is a monarchy and the QORs its oldest regiment. Both the Sovereign and the regiment were ignored by the prime minister. He allowed a foreign potentate to humiliate the Crown, whose chief minister he is, and a regiment whose tradition goes back to the roots of the country.

Mr. St. Laurent has been notoriously lukewarm to the association of Canada with the United Kingdom, but in this instance it was the reputation of Canada as a free and independent nation that was at stake. He has let it down badly.

Spy Scares Precede Purges

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

SOVIET domestic propaganda once again is turning the Russian public's attention to be vigilant against spies and enemy agents. The pattern, old as the 40-year-old USSR, denotes political fireworks in the offing.

When Stalin was preparing his numerous purges and political acrobatics, the press pulled out all stops to convince the public that an imperialist enemy was knocking at Moscow's gates.

It was so after Stalin's death, too. A vigilance campaign preceded the 1953 purge of police boss L. P. Beria. It popped up late in 1954 before the remnants of the Beria group were executed, and before Georgi Malenkov fell from the premiership in 1955. Now the campaign is starting all over again.

Soviet military service papers are running numerous articles reporting capture of shadow foreign spies who attempt to penetrate Russian borders by land and sea. It has a ring of fantasy to Western ears, but must sound ominous to world Communists.

Such campaigns usually have aimed at preparing a climate for tightening internal controls and excusing action against persons in high places.

There is evidence that world communism feels threatened by events in Europe. There is also evidence that the finger of blame points toward those who destroyed the Stalin legend, led by Khrushchev and the small group he heads within the present Soviet collective leadership.

The Chinese Communists provide straws in the wind. Last April they heartily backed the Khrushchev anti-Stalin line. Now the Chinese politburo goes a long way in the opposite direction. The revision was made, said the politburo, because of events since April, including the Hungarian revolt and the "struggle against revisionism."

There is a definite split in the Kremlin. One side of the collective leadership includes Khrushchev, A. I. Mikoyan, N. A. Bulganin and Maxim Saburov, who only recently suffered a demotion as an economic planner. On the other are Malenkov, V. M. Molotov, Mikhail Suslov, L. M. Kaganovich and Mikhail Pervukhin, all regarded as Stalinists.

Since the outbreak of trouble in Poland, neither group has trusted the other out of its sight. On various trouble-shooting trips to the satellites the two factions were equally represented.

If it were not for the Middle East crisis, the Soviet party would have been forced much earlier to liquidate its internal problems. The Egyptian crisis permitted Khrushchev to turn attention to problems abroad. But as such crises ease, Khrushchev is more and more in danger of being ousted.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

"AIN'T a snob a fellow as wants to be taken for better bred, or richer, or cleverer, or more influential than he really is?" asks Charles Lever.

The answer is yes, although that's not the whole story. There are different kinds of snobs.

There is the tuft-hunter, the fellow who likes to keep up with the Joneses when if he'd be himself he'd be a lot happier; and there is the chap who cheapens his manhood by being overawed by a coronet, as someone remarked once, or by the owner of a million dollars. There is also the person who looks down his nose at his father's customs, as it were, forgetting from whence he himself sprang.

Snobbery, unfortunately, runs the gamut of human society and is as prevalent in the lowliest as well as in the highest circles.

* * *

You remember in the well-known novel about a tree which grew in the backyards of Brooklyn that young Francie came up against this trait at public school. It was in a poor neighbourhood and the children were unkempt and ill-mannered. The birching rod was not yet out of fashion and the cruelest teachers were those who had emerged from the same kind of homes as their pupils.

As the author puts it, in their bitterness towards the young students they were exorcising their own fearful backgrounds.

And, in reality, so needlessly.

All honor to the person who hauls himself up, whether by his own bootstraps or with outside aid, from a lower to a higher strata—provided the transition doesn't go to his head. After all, everyone has the same ancestor and since birth is an accident as far as environment is concerned, there is no call in being swell-headed because one happens to be lucky in this respect.

Not of all of us can belong to the heights.

The military forces provided examples of snobbery akin to the school in Brooklyn. Some of the snootiest wartime subalterns were those enjoying rank a cut above their civilian status. Gold braid had perverted their souls.

Whereas the fellows born to the heliotrope if not exactly to the purple often were more considerate to their subordinates.

* * *

Politeness isn't enough, of course, to be the whole antidote to snobbery. Some well-bred fortunates, of good social and financial background, may be unthinking or unwitting snobs. Their upbringing may have induced a superiority complex which their brains never took time to analyze.

It was another writer who said that "snobbery is the pride of those who are not sure of their position," but that works both ways. You could be too sure of your position—if you have one that seems better than that of someone else.

All mortals are common, and while the prizes in life may go to the swift and the strong that doesn't necessarily mean those who are left behind are inferior in being. The superficial graces are admirable things, and so is a nice bank balance. But that's only part of the human story, perhaps merely the prologue.

It is often among those bereft of worldly goods or position that you find the people referred to as the salt of the earth.

Reports from Ottawa

VERY much to the fore in the dispute between the locomotive firemen and the Canadian Pacific Railway is the question of whether the company management or the workers shall make the decisions affecting operation of the railway.

Management arrived at a decision to dispense with firemen on diesel locomotives. Management obviously believes this decision is justified for reasons of economy of operation. Cost savings would be reflected in an increased ability of the company to compete with other forms of transportation, which the CPR management emphasizes, and increased corporate profits, which it does not emphasize.

In this space on Saturday I presented in some detail—and not, I think, without some sympathy—the case the firemen's union makes against the company proposal to take firemen off diesels. The union's case is largely an argument that management's proposal would adversely affect the safety of railway operations by increasing the danger of accidents.

The CPR management has rejected this argument. It may be right or it may be wrong, but the decision and the responsibility for all consequences stemming therefrom belong to management, not to the union. This is so clear cut that the strike becomes in effect an effort by the union to usurp management's function of deciding how the railway shall be run.

* * *

In our democracy labor has a right to strike which can be abridged only by the proper legislative authority. In this case the firemen have fulfilled all the provisions of the law with respect to the conciliation of labor disputes, and their right to walk off the job cannot be challenged.

However, the wisdom of their doing so can be. Their motives can be judged, and the strength of their case can be assessed.

It will be on the basis of such assessments that the public will support or, as I think more likely, will condemn the firemen's union for taking a step which could have grave consequences for the country's economy.

It is axiomatic that a right carries with it a responsibility to use that right wisely. Indeed, if a right is misused to the public detriment, a risk develops that the public authority may take away or abridge the right. That was what happened in 1950, when Parliament broke the then railway strike and forced settlement of the dispute on the principle, enunciated by Prime Minister St. Laurent, that "the insistence on what may be normally private rights may at times amount to what becomes public wrongs."

* * *

An unusual aspect of this labor dispute is that the union is fighting for its members' very existence.

Most union demands on management have to do with improved wages, working conditions and other benefits. But the issue here is whether the CPR will continue to employ firemen. If the firemen lose, they will face the oblivion that woodpassers suffered in the 19th century when steam locomotives converted from wood to coal.

The firemen's adversary is really technological progress — automation, if you will. Thus the dispute is of great significance to all other unions whose members are or may be threatened by new technological developments. If the firemen win, others may be encouraged to use the strike weapon in other industries to protect vested job interests by perpetuating outmoded methods at the expense of industrial efficiency.

Russia's Problem Child

(From The Montreal Gazette)

A MAJOR argument behind Western aid to backward areas is that if the West doesn't give the help required, then the Soviet Union will. The reverse of that argument is well appreciated in Moscow, particularly in regard to Red China.

Nikita Khrushchev is reported to have said, recently, that he didn't want to be reminded of China, he didn't want to discuss it. "We don't know what to do," he said. "They keep on asking for and getting things from us. We are behind in carrying out our own programs so that we can help the Chinese."

"But why do you give them all they ask for?" said a diplomat.

"What do you want us to do?" said Khrushchev, "to oblige them to ask for it from elsewhere?"

With the aid Red China is getting from Russia, China can hope to achieve industrial goals in much less time than it took Russia to achieve them. The immediate result would be that in Asia, at least, China could assume a leadership which Russia has sought for centuries.

Meanwhile, the Chinese Communists are making the very best of their situation. They are getting technicians, machinery, industrial supplies from Russia but they are very grudging about acknowledging their debt. The Russian teachers are housed well away from city centres and obliged to live as inconspicuously as possible.

The Moscow party line, too, is only followed when it suits Chinese needs. It is carefully changed before being given Chinese publication when it is followed at all.

China's future career is as disturbing a subject in the Kremlin as it is in the West.

"Wall," drawled the farmer, embarrassed, "I kinda hoped he'd outgrow it."

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

IT IS not seemly to criticize the spirit of Christmas and New Year during the festive season. These two are the last of the great public holidays in which we all, regardless of race and belief, appear to be as one. Most other public holidays are no more than a closing up of shop, and an escape into the country.

But [illegible] mas, of course, should not happen to a moneylender.

You pick your own gripe. The sacred carols ringing from the transoms of gyp shops. The scandalous shambles of the big stores. The whoopee. Mine is the tragic slaughter of the Christmas trees. Thousands of them ten dollars Christmas Eve, junk the day after—all those grave and lovely younglings of Scotch pine and spruce and balsam, flung into the ash can. . . . Do we not yet know what life is? Or are we solely concerned with human life?

Human life is kinda cute. In my neighborhood it is the custom of youngsters to pick up the odd dime and quarter by calling, usually two by two, seldom four by four, at the front doors in the evenings a week before Christmas to sing a Christmas carol and then ring the bell or bang the knocker. These, in an old tradition, are the waits. But waits, as I understand it, are a company of singers, harmonizing, and usually four or six in number, so that harmony is possible.

But over the TV or radio in your living room you hear a peal of the bell, or a hammer on the knocker. And as you reach the front door, you hear a faint tumult outside, raised by two small boys feebly intoning "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," or "Holy Night." So you fork out a quarter or a dime; and they scamper off next door.

This past Christmas I have been making myself a bit of a nuisance by inquiring of the young scroungers whether they are collecting for Hungarian relief or not. Usually, this inquiry is ill met.

But the best shock I got this Christmas was from one company of three young minstrels who replied, in response to my generous quarter: "Oh, no! Daddy is waiting for us. In the car."

Another Ice Age?

By THOMAS R. HENRY
Science Editor, North American Newspaper Alliance

ANOTHER ice age may be starting. This is indicated by seven years' observations of the Grinnell Glacier in Glacier National Park, according to a report by Dr. R. A. Dightman of the U.S. Weather Bureau.

Studies of this great advancing and receding thermometer of the ages have been carried out jointly by the Weather Bureau, the National Park Service and the Geological Survey. It flows northward. The extent and thickness of the ice indicates climate over long periods just as the height of a mercury column in a thermometer indicates rapid weather changes.

Ever since 1950, after a long period of recession, the glacier has been advancing. The advance logically has come with seven unusually cold winters in the northwest. There have been similar cold winters in northwestern Europe. This has not been the case, however, in eastern North America or eastern Europe.

Glacier measurements are very difficult to interpret in long-range terms. The great ice rivers will advance one year and retreat the next. They are susceptible to strictly local influences which do not indicate climatic conditions as a whole.

"We do know that there is a well-established trend towards cooler weather in the northwest," says Dr. Dightman. "It is generally agreed that there is geological evidence that periods of glacial advance and recession on varying scales have followed each other at intervals of several hundreds, or thousands, of years through the Pleistocene (ice) Ages, with accompanying changes of climate. Results reported from observations in southernmost Greenland seemed to justify the conclusion that at no time since 1400 has the climate been so favorable as it has been since the 1920's."

"However, it seems reasonable to expect this long trend towards a warmer climate to reverse itself eventually, as such trends already have reversed themselves several times within the last few thousand years. Dr. Hans W. Ahlmann has pointed out that the culmination of climate improvement had been reached in many places in the 1930 or 1940 decades and a trend toward cooler climate had started in northwestern Europe.

"So the important question, which probably will have to wait many years for an answer, is whether the trend actually is reversing itself in northwestern Europe and the northwestern parts of North America."

Activity of glaciers has increased as far south as the central Sierras and as far east as the Rockies.

Mayor Calls for Progress with Economy in 1957

$200,000 Expected

Point Ellice Span Ready Before Fall

REEVE A. C. WURTELE

Start on construction of the new Point Ellice bridge is expected by April and work should be completed sometime during the summer, Mayor Percy Scurrah said last night in his inaugural address to council.

Total federal and provincial assistance of around $200,000 in building the new Point Ellice Bridge was anticipated, he stated.

"Last year we had no expectation of any assistance in view, for the building of this bridge" he said "and I am glad to report to you now that the picture has changed considerably during the past year."

A definite agreement has been reached with the Canadian National Railways, the mayor announced, and "they will pay the cost of raising the piers at the west end which will mean a saving of some $15,000 to $20,000 to the city."

In addition, he said the Board of Transport had agreed in principle to pay 30 per cent of the cost of the bridge from the westerly approach to the second pier.

"We will not know definitely what this amount will be until the bridge is built because they will pay on the actual cost. However, our estimate is that it should amount to approximately $90,000."

In addition, the mayor said, negotiations were still in progress for a rebate of the federal 10 per cent sales tax on the steel work, and "we feel that we have a very just claim to a rebate . . . "

Because of statements "made on the public platform in the recent election," he continued, "we also think that we will receive an equal amount of assistance from the provincial government as . . . from the federal government. That being so, our total assistance toward the cost of the bridge should be around $200,000."

Esquimalt Inaugural

'Let's Clean Up' Wurtele Urges

A cleaner, brighter Esquimalt should be one of the targets of the municipality's council in 1957, Reeve A. C. Wurtele told councillors last night at their first meeting of the year.

"I suggest that now many streets have been curbed that more money be appropriated for street cleaning, and that equipment be rented or purchased for this purpose," he said.

An effort should also be made, Reeve Wurtele said, to keep the streets and sidewalks in front of retail stores in a much cleaner state.

Boulevards should also be cleaned up where new curbs have been constructed, he said.

To avoid the imposition of a boulevard tax, the cooperation of residents in keeping boulevards tidy is essential, he said.

"The lighting in Esquimalt," he said, "should be a little better. I believe that our finances will allow for some improvement."

He urged Coun. Walter Holder, chairman of the fire and lights committee, to bring in a plan of improvement before the budget was considered.

Stating that an accident on Esquimalt Road just inside Victoria took the life of a pedestrian Saturday, he said a spotlight might help illuminate some crosswalks to prevent future accidents of that type.

Reeve Wurtele also urged council to consider:

An investigation of the drainage system where flooding occurred recently to ascertain what improvements can be made.

A pumping system to take sewerage away from Kinver Beach.

Completion of the Gosper subdivision so all lots may be put on the market.

Continuation of the local improvement program of sidewalks, curbs and gutters, particularly along Lyall Street.

Inaugural Address Outlines Program

By R. O. MARRION

Mayor Percy B. Scurrah called last night for another year of civic progress, but for restraint in spending.

In his inaugural address to council, his attitude seemed to be summed up in these words:

"It is my hope that we will be able to continue the policy adopted by the 1951 council of living within our income or if that is not possible, at least of keeping our borrowings at a minimum.

"There are, however, some disturbing factors in the financial situation for 1957, as we are apparently going to be faced with an increase in our payroll. This increase is bound to be reflected in the amount of services which we can give our citizens as I personally feel that any increase in the mill rate is inadvisable and must be avoided if it is humanly possible to do so."

ONE RAY OF HOPE

From the taxpayers' point of view, Mayor Scurrah said, "the one ray of hope for them is that I understand the provincial government is introducing legislation which will pay $28 to each owner of a single-family dwelling. This is of no value to us as a corporation but it will give some relief to many people who are in need of it."

As well as reviewing the progress of the past year, the mayor laid before council a program for the coming year.

Here, in brief, is what he proposed:

1. That the public works committee make an intensive study of the Faustman report on traffic and parking immediately, "as in my opinion that is a problem that should be tackled and solved before the tourist traffic becomes heavy next summer."

2. That the present downtown fire hall should be replaced in 1957—"As soon as we know how much money will be left in our land account after paying for the Point Ellice bridge I would recommend that the council go ahead with the building of a new fire hall."

DRAINS, PAVING

3. That a limited program of public works be undertaken, including work on drains and on Bowker Creek, a start on the extension of the Clover Point outfall, and some paving.

4. That the garbage committee give immediate attention to methods of disposing of garbage and recommend to council what should be done.

5. That the zoning by-law passed in 1956 be closely scrutinized to be sure its provisions are equitable—"We cannot afford to kill certain kinds of building by being too restrictive in our requirements."

6. That the Victoria-Saanich joint municipal hall committee study not only the possibility of building a joint hall but of amalgamating services, including fire and police.

7. That provision be made in the budget for the city's share of placing downtown wiring underground.

Business Tax Heated Issue

Ald. Curtis retorted that "the chairman should have been courteous enough to pass that information along to me."

The report was lifted from the table, but new controversy broke out when Ald. Arthur Dowell moved that it be referred to the new committee.

Ald. Smith said "anyone refusing to act on it who has as much knowledge as the senior alderman (Ald. Dowell) is evading responsibility."

He accused "certain members of council" of "deliberately forestalling debate."

'EXPECTING ACTION'

"The people of Victoria," he said, "are expecting council to take action tonight."

Council might as well vote it out for the year as refer it to the new committee, he said.

"You're chairman," said the mayor, "I don't see why it would be voted out for the year."

"To refer it to any committee would just be delaying it so it can't be included in the budget for 1957," said Ald. Smith.

"I just outlined how it could be included," answered the mayor, referring to his original remarks.

"Are you in favor of business tax?" Ald. Smith challenged him.

The mayor said he favored revision of the present system, not business tax as such—"Call it what you like."

REEVE FRED NORRIS

Police, Fire

How About Combining Services?

Investigation of the effect of combining Victoria and Saanich police and fire services was suggested by Mayor Percy Scurrah last night in his inaugural address.

"If a saving could be made with increased efficiency, it would be well to find out what it would be," the mayor said.

Saanich reeve Arthur Ash agreed.

The mayor said he wanted the committee investigating the possibility of building a joint Victoria-Saanich city hall to investigate also the amalgamation of services.

"I am convinced a considerable saving could be made if, for instance, we had one purchasing agent for both municipalities," he said. "The increased quantities that we would be able to buy would be bound to be reflected in a lower price than we now receive."

Reeve Ash said he readily agreed to a study of the possibilities in the mayor's suggestion.

"I would certainly be in favor of unified services," he lighter load for the taxpayer in the long run.

"The sooner people realize that amalgamation of certain services, if not total amalgamation, is in the best interests of the people, the better," he said.

Oak Bay Inaugural

Plan for Floods Norris Advises

Reeve Fred Norris of Oak Bay last night called for introduction this year of a new building code for the municipality, promised action on the storm-drains system and took swipes at three inter-municipal organizations.

The Dec. 9 flooding pointed up "certain weaknesses . . . in the existing system that should be given immediate consideration," he said in an inaugural address at the first meeting of Oak Bay's 52nd council.

It was impractical or impossible in most cases to set up a system that would take care of a "similar situation," he said, but an over-all project should be set up with both temporary and long-range measures in mind.

"Some thought" should be given to hiring a firm of consulting engineers to make "a complete survey of the needs," he added.

Mr. Norris, in calling for a building code patterned on the new National Building Code, said many Oak Bay houses are "sub-standard in respect to sensible surface drainage" and the new code should include minimum standards.

Two petitions from residents in the Newport-Central area and in the Carnarvon Park area were referred later in the meeting to the new public works committee, which was set up to study the problem.

Mr. Norris noted that talks with Victoria and Esquimalt on a Union Board of Health have not resulted in much progress. He served notice that Oak Bay would not "put itself in the position of merely purchasing health services from a city-controlled department."

Oak Bay's representative on the Regional Planning Board should "speak with some concern" about the master plan for the district. The board has "undertaken too many side issues at the expense of the final draft of the master plan," he said.

Also, Oak Bay should not approve any further board costs until a return is made to the original agreement of cost distribution.

With regard to the inter-municipal committee, Mr. Norris complained that representation was confused in meetings last year and one area would have three or four voting members present while another had only one.

The council received a submission from the Greater Victoria school board, suggesting March 6 or 7 as the date for re-submission of the $5,800,000 schools construction referendum to voters. It also asked for more than one polling station.

It also received a report from municipal clerk A. D. Findlay, suggesting March 9 as the date and recommending that just one polling station, at the municipal hall, be used.

Ash Springs Major Sensation

and drainage plan in the Greater Victoria area. We seem content to let these problems solve themselves. We can, of course, continue along in this way, putting off the evil day until sheer necessity will force our hand.

"Elected bodies who sit pretentiously smug while these tremendous problems cry out for action are not fulfilling their responsibilities to the people.

Reeve Ash termed "superfluous and ridiculous" the existing set-up of four municipal halls in a relatively small area confining "four municipalities and four of everything else."

"It is interesting to note," he continued, "that in the last municipal elections in Oak Bay, only a bare majority approved the building of a new municipal hall.

"It is quite evident to me that opinion in the area is changing rapidly towards a united Greater Victoria.

"It is our duty to investigate and study any plan put before us regarding amalgamation. Surely our civic pride can extend beyond our municipal boundaries."

The reeve went into an extensive review of The past year's accomplishments, emphasizing that much was done despite differences of council on administrative reform.

He gave a clear-cut indication that he would work wholeheartedly with the comptroller-treasurer despite the fact the reeve and two other councillors opposed his appointment as contrary to expert opinion and failure to implement the Brannan-Bracewell report recommendations.

"While I opposed the appointment . . . for good and valid reasons," he said, "I want him to know publicly that I wish him every success in his new duties. I know my relationship with him will continue to be the best."

EVERYONE LOYAL

Loyalty of others appointed in the alternative administrative shuffle last year has "never at any time been questioned," the reeve added.

Turning to his own position, Reeve Ash said he regretted times when council definitely disagreed in matters of policy. "That, of course is inevitable in our democracy and under our parliamentary system."

Entering the second year of his two-year term, he said, "I will continue to carry out my duties and responsibilities . . . and fight for what I think is in the best interests of the community.

"So there may be no misunderstanding as to my motives during the year, I wish to inform council I will not under any circumstances stand again for election to the office of reeve.

OTHERS AVAILABLE

"There are many men far more able and experienced than I to occupy the honored position of reeve. However, at the close of this year, I would like to think I have made some small contribution to our civic affairs."

But the reeve served notice that it would still be a busy, and he hoped, progressive year remaining in his term. He reshuffled committees, pared some, added to others—all the reeve's prerogative.

Most sweeping is the institution of a five-member public works and fire committee, made up of four former committees allied with the engineering branch of the civic service—fire and water, building and lands, sewers and drainage and general public works with Coun. Leslie Passmore, chairman, Coun. George Austin, co-chairman.

A new committee, the employees' welfare committee, will be set up to deal with all matters affecting administration employees with Coun. Passmore as chairman.

Other commitee heads are Coun. Eugene Diespecker, finance; Coun. George Austin, transportation; Coun. T. J. O'Neill, municipal parks; Coun. Ainslie Worthington, health and welfare, and Coun. J. Ronald Grant, industrial development.

OTHER ITEMS

Other items dealt with in detail in the report were:

Sewers—Failing government assistance, he recommended that a sewer by-law be submitted to ratepayers as soon as possible after Feb. 7.

Local improvements—Delay of non-essential local works programs may be forced by continuing state of bond market, depending on results of forthcoming local improvement issue and "money situation in general."

Planning—"While I am not advocating abolishment of the town planning commission, it seems if we are going to have orderly, long-term planning in the Greater Victoria area, that one planning board could very well look after the whole area."

Subdivisions—Subdividers should meet costs of installing sewer laterals, streets and sidewalks, and lay aside certain tracts for "greens" in each subdivision.

Municipal hall—Same committee to work with city in hope that "both councils" will arrive at an agreement and present a plan complete with costs, specifications that may be laid before the ratepayers at the earliest possible opportunity."

REVISE BY-LAWS

By-laws—Bring up to date before "we all become lost in a maze of obsolete and amended by-laws and waste much time." Comptroller-treasurer ordered to review and recommend changes.

Administration — Comptroller-treasurer instructed to confer with heads of departments and make recommendations to streamline affairs for maximum efficiency.

Finances—Institution of monthly financial statements, rather than quarterly as before, to keep a closer watch on expenditures within the budget.

Wages—Complete revision of employees' salaries with a recommended two per cent increase in wages to firemen, bringing the department in line with all other departments with exception of police.

Budget—Recommended formulation of a capital budgeting scheme to remove administrative programs from a year-to-year basis.

Roads—Time has come for a comprehensive construction program on a long-term priority basis, providing capital budgeting is approved. Some requiring immediate attention are Shelbourne, Cloverdale, Quadra, Reynolds and parts of Cedar Hill.

Other items touched included the appointment of a purchasing agent, institution of a complete engineering department inventory, setting up of a work order system and a complaints bureau in the engineering department.

Inco Droops As Hopes Dim On 'Split'

TORONTO (CP)—The lowering influence of Wall Street struck the stock market here Monday and gains were reduced in the final hour. The market, however, managed to hang on to a slight advance, its 10th in a row.

International Nickel was the feature of the board. It touched a new high of 110½ with a five-point gain shortly after noon as rumors circulated to the effect that a five-for-one split in the common stock was being contemplated.

Shortly after 3 p.m. it was announced from New York that the directors of International Nickel, who held a meeting Monday, did not discuss a stock split.

Reaction on the stock here was sudden as it dipped back to 105 and then climbed to 107 for a 1½-point gain on the day.

Other senior base metals were fractionally higher although Hudson Bay dipped ¾. Juniors had gains ranging to 20 cents. Uraniums were firm with Stanleigh up 40 cents, Black Bay 19 cents and Consolidated Denison 1⅛.

Charter Oil gained 35 cents among western oils and Trans Canada 29 cents. Great Plains added a point. Canadian Devonian lost 20 cents.

Profits Taken

MONTREAL (CP) — Profit-taking bit into what started as a good advance Monday on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges. Scattered gains and declines ranged to a point or more at the close of moderately active trading.

International Nickel was up a point after being ahead 4½ in base metals. Aluminium dropped 3¼ in the section. Interprovincial gained 1 and Trans Mountain ½ in pipe lines. Refining oils showed McColl up 2½ and International Petroleum and Imperial off major fractions.

Mines were irregularly better as Quebec Chib climbed 25 cents and Baker Talc 13. Consolidated Denison firmed 1⅜ while Campbell Chib lost ¾ among seniors.

Setback in Steels

NEW YORK (AP)—An early stock market rise proved abortive Monday and the list slumped with industrials taking the brunt of the losses.

Steels, oils and miscellaneous manufacturing stocks suffered most. Rails were fractionally mixed. Utilities escaped without loss and American Telephone continued its strides of last week.

Early losses were reduced before the close, however, and a number of plus signs appeared where declines were posted previously.

London Prices Firm

LONDON (Reuters)—The stock market continued to respond to selective buying on an increased scale.

Weekend press comment and talk of a lower bank rate encouraged more buying of gilt-edged securities which were up to 5-16ths higher.

Japanese were generally harder among foreign bonds while foreign rails are better where changed. Selective buying continued to help industrials.

After initial uncertainty gold shares took on a brighter appearance. Coppers went ahead and diamonds were firm.

Grain Prices

WINNIPEG (CP)—Some export interest appeared today in barley and flax, but trade generally was on dull lines with the CPR strike continuing to interfere with normal movement of grain.

A parcel lot of barley was reported sold to the Continent and a small quanity was sold to the United Kingdom on a deferred basis.

In flax some export buying and demand from international houses took elevator companies' hedging offerings. Prices were erratic.

U.S. accounts and export interests took barley and domestic shippers bought both oats and barley. Prices moved narrowly.

Rye trade was thin and prices were erratic. U.S. interests appeared on both sides of the trade.

CHICAGO (AP)—Demand for wheat sent that grain up for a modest advance. Rye was ahead with wheat until the closing minutes. Then rye gave up its gains.

News during the weekend that export restrictions in shipment of American surplus farm products to Poland had been lifted appeared to be the main influence behind the buying.

Firemen Accept

CPR Rejects CCL Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian Labor Congress plan for ending the CPR firemen's strike collapsed Monday night when the company rejected it after the striking union had accepted it.

Claude Jodoin, CLC president, promptly called the CPR's action "incomprehensible" and said he planned new meetings with heads of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (CLC) to discuss the step.

However, he said, he did not expect any new move by the congress was likely to develop quickly.

The head of the 1,000,000-member labor body also declared he plans to get in touch with the government before today's opening of Parliament, though he did not indicate what he might have in mind.

REPORT NOT BINDING

It was the government—through Prime Minister St. Laurent—that [illegible] the congress plan to the CPR during the weekend after it had been approved by the brotherhood at CLC union meetings here.

The proposal was for an immediate back-to-work order by the union to its 3,000 striking employees provided a commission of inquiry investigates the strike issue of the use of firemen on diesel locomotives. Findings of the commission would not be binding.

The commission would be given until next Dec. 31 to complete its work with the union undertaking not to strike over the diesel question in the meantime.

A further provision of the congress was that the CPR's firemen be given the same wage increases as those received last year by firemen on the CNR, which signed a contract after abandoning a proposal similar to the CPR's for reducing the number of firemen in diesel operations.

The CPR men received staggered wage increases totalling 11 per cent, plu. $4.25 a month in lieu of a health-welfare plan, effective Jan. 1.

SEES NO SOLUTION

While President Jodoin called the CLC's plan "fair and reasonable," CPR president N. R. Crump at Montreal said it would not solve the diesel issue.

"It would merely postpone coming to grips with that issue and leave the country subject to renewal of the strike," he said in a statement.

The walkout, which started Wednesday afternoon, has made idle some 67,000 CPR employees in addition to other thousands laid off by industries dependent on the CPR for transport. The company closed down its transcontinental rail operations when the walkout began.

Youngest Bishop Elevated Sunday

Canon Ralph Stanley Dean, 43, donned bishop's vestments Sunday morning to become the youngest bishop of the Anglican Church of Canada.

Formerly principal of Emmanuel College in Saskatoon, he was consecrated as bishop of the Cariboo in ceremonies in Christ Church Cathedral. Archbishop Harold E. Sexton of [illegible] Preacher was Very Rev. Northcote R. Burke, dean and rector of Vancouver's Christ Church Cathedral.

The climax of the two-hour service was when Archbishop Sexton and nine visiting bishops laid their hands on the head of the bishop-elect, thus elevating him to his new episcopal rank.

Ranieri Shows Well for Bruin Boss; Sparks Cougars to Win Over Canucks

By JIM TANG

Lynn Patrick's name won't be found in the summary of last night's Western Hockey League game at Memorial Arena but it could be that the general-manager of the Boston Bruins rates an assist or two for Victoria Cougars' thrilling 4-2 conquest of Vancouver Canucks.

Tabbed by Patrick as one of the most promising youngsters in the Boston system, George Ranieri came up with his finest game of the season, with Patrick watching approvingly from the press box to lead the Cougars to their come-from-behind victory fashioned dramatically in the last three minutes of play.

Last night's score: Vancouver 2 at VICTORIA 4
Next games: tonight, Winnipeg at Vancouver, Calgary at Edmonton.

Skating hard both ways, the husky rookie came through with a spectacular goal at 17.14 of the third period to tie it up just when it appeared as if Canucks' harrying tactics were going to make a 2-1 lead stand up.

BRILLIANT EFFORT

Accepting a pass just outside the Vancouver blue-line Ranieri shifted beautifully through the Vancouver defence, moved in on goal with both defencemen

LYNN PATRICK

Canucks were still in a state of shock and Memorial Arena was still echoing with cheers for Ranieri when the Cougars took the lead for the first time, only 14 seconds later.

Doug Anderson got the draw from the ensuing face-off and play moved back into Vancouver territory. Colin Kilburn got possession to the left of Mikulan, passed quickly to Doug Macauley, who hit a top corner with a snap shot before Mikulan could cover.

Canucks had Mikulan out of the nets when Ranieri climaxed his biggest night of the season by scoring the clincher. Taking time to get set after racing down the right boards to get to the puck at the Vancouver blue line, he hit the centre of the open goal to get his fifth goal. He also drew an assist on Cougars' first goal.

Up until Ranieri's great rush, it appeared as if the Cougars were going to lose a game they deserved to win.

MALONEY AGAIN

The Victoria club played a mediocre first period and dropped behind, 1-0, on a mediocre goal by Phil Maloney—a long shot which deflected off two players before going in.

Cougars came back sturdily in the second period to carry the play. They fired 20 shots at Mikulan, who was having one of his better games, while Canucks only got seven shots at Pelletier. But the best the Cougars could do was to hold a tie for just over two minutes.

Gordie Haworth set up the tying goal with a speedy rush which ended when he and Mikulan went down together and the puck rolled free. Following up, Carmichael snapped the loose puck into the net over their prone bodies.

Canucks protested that Haworth was in the crease but referee Vern Buffey, who otherwise had himself a bad night, pointed out correctly that the Victoria centre wasn't there by choice.

But Cougars slipped shortly after getting jammed up on the right side while Bud Syverson slipped in unnoticed on the left to get a pass from the alert Wiggie Wylie.

FIRST OF SEASON

It was the first goal of the season for the sophomore defenseman, who was turned down by Cougars when Calgary Stampeders insisted he be kept for the season.

That one almost stood up. Cougars pressed continuously but they couldn't score although there were times when it seemed as if they couldn't miss. Some bad shooting and passing, good goaling by Mikulan, and persistent checking kept them up until Ranieri lit the fuse.

Victory moved the Cougars within three points of the second-place Canucks and within one of the New Westminster Royals, and their garrison finish may be just what they needed to take advantage of the opportunity presented by the schedule during the next two weeks.

Between now and Jan. 21 the Cougars play Royals three times, Canucks twice and Seattle Americans once.

Robbie's Decision Definite

NEW YORK (AP)—The door surprisingly was opened Monday for Jackie Robinson to reconsider his announced retirement from baseball—but it was unceremoniously shut by the 38-year-old star.

In an announcement at a press conference staged by Robinson's new employer, a restaurant chain, Jackie said:

"My mind is made up. I am through with baseball. If I had any doubts before, Mr. Bavasi (E. J. Bavasi, vice-president of Brooklyn Dodgers) made it up for me with his slurring remarks about my character. I wouldn't play now if I were offered a million dollars."

Robinson still was boiling over quotes attributed to Bavasi in a New York newspaper criticizing Robinson for "telling newspapermen one thing and writing another for money."

Canuck Soccer Team Invited For Summer Tour of Russia

Russian soccer officials have issued an invitation to the Football Association of Canada to send an all-star Canadian team on a tour of Russia this summer.

George Anderson of Winnipeg, association secretary, said Monday the invitation was relayed through Ottawa by Russian ambassador D. Chuvahin. The Russians offered to pay the Canadians' expenses from Iceland to Russia and back to Canada, and suggested the periods of June 1-July 15 or August 15-October 1 as the most convenient.

Last year the Moscow Lokomotiv team made a tour of Canada at the expense of the FAC, and the Russians won all five of their games.

However, Anderson also said that the Canadian all-star team is already heavily booked in both the suggested periods, and that a Russian tour next year might be more feasible.

Aussie Official Blasts U.S. Tennis Promoter

MELBOURNE (AP)—D. M. Ferguson, president of the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia, launched a bitter attack Monday against United States professional promoter Jack Kramer.

Speaking at a special meeting of the association council called to discuss Kramer's hiring of Kooyong—Australia's Wimbledon—for the professional debut of former Aussie Davis Cup star Ken Rosewall, Ferguson said: "Kramer is making a frontal attack on our major title."

The Australian championships are to be held at Kooyong three days after the scheduled Rosewall-Dick Gonzales professional matches.

"He once publicly declared he was out to break the amateur game, and we should not give him any encouragement. We are in business against him and you never give your business competitor a run on the rails."

Despite Ferguson's spirited opposition, the LTA council voted 7 to 5 to approve the Victoria State Lawn Tennis Association's decision to rent Kooyong to Kramer for the nights of Jan. 14 and 15.

At a press conference late Monday Kramer said: "I am not out to break amateur tennis. I am out to help it all I can."

Mackenzie Quits B.C. Lions; Als Involved in Grid Hassle

Don Mackenzie, president of the B.C. Lions since they were first admitted to the Western Interprovincial Football Union three years ago, stepped down from his position last night at the Lions' annual meeting in Vancouver.

Mackenzie, in making his report to the board of directors, made several recommendations for the coming season, among them that the Lions continue to hold their training camp at Kelowna.

He also spoke on the player outlook for 1957.

"We have several new players under contract and expect to sign more after the National Football League draft in two weeks. The coaches are not necessarily going after All-Americans, we want players who are best-suited to Canadian football."

Lions have already signed guard Vince Scorsone of the University of Pittsburgh, Washington's fourth draft choice; Tennessee tackle John Gordy; halfback Terry Barr of Michigan, and Steve Junker, an end from Xavier.

TROUBLE AGAIN

Meanwhile Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four Football Union are running into contract troubles again. Two years ago the Als had to do some fancy scrambling to land quarterback Sam Etcheverry after "the Rifle" had signed two contracts—one with them and one with Chicago Cardinals. Now they are faced with the same problem with another highly touted American.

Mississippi Southern tackle Don Owens has admitted signing two contracts, one with the Als and another with Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League, but says he accepted $1,000 bonus from the Steelers and will play for them.

Alouette president Leo Dandurand claims Owens signed with Montreal first, and also accepted money—a fact that Owens denies. Dandurand has not yet indicated whether Als will take the matter to court.

Bill Glass, All-American guard from Baylor signed by Saskatchewan Roughriders, has been accused by Detroit Lions' general-manager Nick Kerbawy with breaking a previous oral agreement to play for the Lions. However, Glass denied the charge and it appears certain that he will stay with the Riders.

Hucul Traded

CALGARY (CP) — Sandy Hucul, defenceman with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Hockey League, has been traded to Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League for Victor Dzurke.

Gutoski Edges Young To Lead Consols Play

Tony Gutoski's rink last night took the lead in the Vancouver Island British Consuls final by taking a hard-fought, 8-6, decision from the Navy rink skipped by Wes Young.

Young and Gutoski are representing Victoria in the finals, a round-robin affair with two rinks from each of the Alberni Valley, Nanaimo and Duncan Curling Clubs also competing. Other games will be played at Duncan on Saturday and Sunday.

Gutoski took a 3-1 lead with a 5-2 lead after six ends. However, the Young rink got one on the seventh end and took the lead with three on the eighth. Gutoski tied it with one on the ninth and went ahead with one on the 10th.

The 11th end was blanked and the rinks started home with Young still one down but having advantage of last rock. Gutoski had a "biter" when Young stepped into the hack for last rock but the Navy skip was a trifle heavy with his draw and missed a chance for an extra end.

Bionda Rated Top Prospect; Boxla Career Appears Over

Jack Bionda, probably the best, and certainly the most interesting, lacrosse player to be brought here from Eastern Canada, has a fine hockey career ahead of him and it's entirely unlikely that he'll be seen here again in Inter-City Lacrosse League action.

Hopes of Victoria Shamrocks that they would have Bionda back for the 1957 season seemed doomed yesterday when Lynn Patrick, general-manager of the Boston Bruins turned thumbs down on any lacrosse for his young defenseman.

"We don't let him play lacrosse," Patrick said firmly in answer to a question. "He has his choice. He can either play hockey or lacrosse."

On the West Coast for a week to take a look at Western Hockey League players, Patrick felt that Bionda had a fine future in hockey.

"He'll be our best defenseman within three years," the Boston general-manager predicted. "He's a natural athlete and a whale of a competitor, and he's learning fast."

WORDS OF PRAISE

Although last night's game at Memorial Arena was the first WHL action he had seen this season, Patrick had words of praise for the calibre of hockey being played in the Western professional league.

He reported that Harold "Baldy" Cotton, Boston scout who had a look at the WHL earlier this season, came back with glowing reports of the hockey being played in the WHL.

"When we sent you Ranieri, Beckett, Heinrich and Bulloch we thought we had given you a first-place team," Patrick said. "I guess we may have underestimated the strength of your league."

He added, however, that the first-place team could still be possible if the Cougars ever got their best line-up on the ice for a lengthy stretch.

HIGH ON BECKETT

Patrick rated Bob Beckett, the big winger who never got started here, and Ranieri as two of the top prospects in the Boston system.

"I can't understand what happened to Beckett out here," Patrick mused. "He's the best hockey player Quebec Aces have now and when we brought him up to the Bruins for two games, he filled in for Vic Stasiuk in great style."

Patrick also disclosed that the Bruins had intended calling up Ranieri when they ran into some injuries but couldn't make the necessary transportation arrangements. Last night, Ranieri turned in the kind of performance likely to bring him a call as soon as the Bruins need a player again.

Asked about his own club, Patrick firmly rejected the popular belief that the Bruins have been the "surprise club" of the NHL season.

"After we got started last season, we won more games than any club except Montreal and I couldn't see why we were rated so low this season. I thought we could beat every club except Canadiens."

He credited the play of Doug Mohns, a big young leftwinger converted into a defenseman, as the biggest single reason for the steady play of the Bruins this season. He rated Mohns second only to unsung Bob Armstrong among Boston defensemen and said that the fact Bruins had come up with six capable defensemen was another big factor in their success.

Two former WHL players—defenseman Allan Stanley and winger Vic Stasiuk—also drew a lot of credit for the winning ways of the Bruins this season.

WHL grads on other clubs also won approval. He rated Al Arbour, called up a few weeks ago from Edmonton, as Detroit's best defenseman, and had a special word of praise for sophomore Johnny Bucyk of the Wings.

Andy Hebenton, Patrick said, hadn't been going as well during the first part of this season as he did in his rookie season but seemed to be back in top form in recent games.

Of brother Muzz' Rangers, Lynn said, straight-faced and with last season probably in mind, "They're not much."

Hoop Playoffs Start Tonight

Playoffs in the senior "B" Men's Basketball League will begin tonight at Victoria High School. Farmer Construction meets Rose Fuel in the first game of a two-game total-point elimination series at 8.30.

City Buttons Won By Oak Bay Team

City open golf buttons changed hands again Sunday afternoon when Doug Munro and Einar Brynjolson of Victoria Golf Club defeated Laurie Kerr and Bill Court of Colwood, one up, at Uplands Golf Club.

Munro rolled in a birdie putt on the 17th green to square the match, then got down in par on the 18th for the victory. The new champions were two up after 10 holes, but Kerr squared the match as he dropped a three-foot putt for an eagle three on the 14th after the challengers had won the 12th.

In a junior button match on the same course, Dale Dalziel and Bill Wakeham edged Noel Dalziel and Bob Ashton, one up. All four are from Uplands.

Goat of 1941 World Series . . . . . . Fighting Back as Manager

Owen Counts on Hope, Hard Work for Return to Majors

By OSCAR FRALEY

MAYAGUEZ, Puerto Rico (UP)—Mickey Owen is counting on hope and hard work to beat the adversity which has dogged him and lead him back to the major leagues.

Owen in the one-time Dodger catcher who was the goat of the 1941 world series and then spent a period in sackcloth and ashes for jumping to the Mexican league. The road back has been a rough one.

"But I'm going all out to prove myself," says Owen, who now manages the Mayaguez Indios of the Puerto Rican league, "and I'm shooting for a managerial job in the major leagues some day."

Bad breaks such as Owen suffered have left a lifelong mark on some of baseball's other unfortunates. Fred Merkle became a virtual recluse after his 1908 "bonehead play" which cost the Giants a pennant and felt, before his recent death, that he had been "hounded all my life." Fred Snodgrass, another Giant, became a successful California rancher after his muffed fly cost the Giants the 1912 series but admitted "they never let me forget it."

"Sure, I hear about it once in a while," Owen says of the 1941 game in which he dropped a final out third strike against Tommy Henrich and "Old Reliable" wound up safe at first to keep the Yanks alive and send them on to victory.

"But people haven't been nasty about it," he smiles. "They seem more amazed to find out that I'm the fellow who dropped the ball."

Nor does Owen, who was suspended three and one-half years for his jump south of the border, lay the blame on pitcher Hugh Casey.

"Sure, I've heard those stories that Casey threw a spitter," he admitted. "But it wasn't. Casey threw two kinds of curves, a quick one and a big one. He hadn't thrown many big ones that day and it caught me by surprise. That's all there was to it."

This is Owen's fourth year as a manager in the winter leagues and, come spring time, he'll go stateside and manage Jacksonville, Fla., in the Milwaukee system. In his battle back from near oblivion, he has done yeoman work in both the Red Sox and Cardinal chains.

"Maybe it sounds a little corny," mused the youthful looking Mickey, "but baseball is my life. It's what I enjoy doing and it's what I feel I do best.

"Some of those years were what you might call on the rough side," he added, "but I never quit hoping and believing that a game as good as this wouldn't let a man down. It's a long, long way back up to the big leagues and I've had several offers to be a coach. But the bull pen isn't for me. If I work hard enough, maybe, some day, I'll be back on a big league bench as manager of my own ball club. Anyhow, that's what I'm shooting for."

And if perspiration and prayer will do it, Mickey Owen will be back up there one of these days, too.

Bruins Drop to Third

Habs Threaten Wings for NHL Lead

Montreal Canadians, who won in a breeze last season, are getting steadily closer to the National Hockey League lead but they may have been stymied again by an injury.

Without the two Richards, goalie Jacques Plante and Bernie Geoffrion at various times this season, Canadiens may have to try it on Thursday night without Jean Beliveau.

Beliveau was checked heavily into the boards by Lou Fontinato on Sunday night in a 3-2 win over the Rangers at New York. The starry centre received a badly bruised hip and it will be a couple of days before it can be established whether he will be able to stay in action.

HORVATH MOVES UP

In the meantime, Canadiens have called up Bronco Horvath from Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League as insurance. Horvath, who holds the Western Hockey League scoring record, was obtained from the Rangers earlier in the season and sent to Rochester.

Canadiens' win boosted them ahead of Boston Bruins, who had to rally to get a 4-4 tie with Chicago Black Hawks. In Sunday's other game, Detroit Red Wings retained their one-point lead with a hard-fought, 2-1, win over Toronto Maple Leafs.

Action at New York was on the robust side, featuring fights between Fontinato and Bert Olmstead and Henri Richard and Bill Gadsby. Fontinato, who leads the league in penalties, was sitting it out when Dickie Moore broke a 2-2 tie in the third period.

Earlier, Danny Lewicki and Andy Hebenton had teamed up twice to overcome Montreal leads set up by Maurice Richard and Geoffrion.

Play at Detroit was featured by the return of Ted Kennedy to the Toronto line-up. The 31-year-old centre has been inactive for 18 months and is going to make a definite decision on whether or not to end his retirement after a three-game trial period. He'll play at New York Wednesday and Montreal Saturday.

Sunday's scores: Toronto 1 at Detroit 2; Montreal 3 at New York 2; Boston 4 at Chicago 4.

Next game: Wednesday, Toronto at New York.

Sophomore Johnny Bucyk, who has been getting some big goals of late, won it for the Wings when he scored, after a neat play with Alex Delvecchio, late in the third period.

Weakened by injuries Boston came from behind four times before making it stick in the game at Chicago. Larry Regan, a 26-year-old rookie who may be the find of the season, tied it for the last time midway through the third period.

Davidson's goal came midway through the half from a scramble in front of the Tillicum net. Scottish held a 1-0 lead early in the half on a goal by Archie Taylor, but Ced Robb evened the count for Tillicums just before the intermission.

GORGE WINS

In Sunday's only Victoria and District Football League action, Gorge Hotel coasted to its second straight victory of the season half, trouncing Heaneys 6-2, at Central Park.

Heaneys, who took their second straight loss, held a 2-1 lead at half-time as Morris Bunyan and Bill Burley scored for the Cartagemen and Chick Newman answered for Gorge.

However, the Hotelmen, first-half champions, took command in the second half. Don McGee scored twice and Jack Thompson, Ian Holroyd and Bill Bamford picked up a goal apiece.

Jury Returns Open Verdict

DUNCAN — An open verdict was returned by a jury inquiring into the highway death of Robert Percival Mayes, of North Burnaby, who was instantly killed when his car left the road and crashed into a power pole nine miles south of here on Dec. 30.

The inquest, on Dec. 31, was adjourned at the request of foreman of the jury, Coun. Ron McCondach and City Alderman J. J. Kerrone, because there was not enough evidence to determine how the accident happened.

Coun. McCondach requested that the survivor of the accident, Miss Mary Josephine McConnell, seriously injured and in King's Daughters' Hospital, be interviewed by the coroner.

Coroner A. E. Green took a deposition from Miss McConnell last Saturday, but this did not help the jury, as Miss McConnell said she was dozing quite a bit and did not know anything of what caused the did not help the jury.

Break-In

Police Hold Youths

NANAIMO — Two Victoria youths were arrested here with groceries and cigarets in their possession following a break-in at Smith's Grocery store, Bastion Street, just after midnight Sunday.

The pair, both juveniles, are believed to have been found in possession of a stolen car. They will be charged in police court here today.

Another break-in was reported at the Koffee Kup Cafe, Brechin, where Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Clarkson, who live on the premises, were disturbed about 3 a.m. Monday morning by intruders.

Mr. Clarkson was in time to see two youths rifling the till. One made a dash for him in the darkness, but he slammed the door in his face.

The pair then made off with about $5 in cash and a small quantity of goods. Mr. Clarkson, it is understood, can identify at least one of the burglars.

First Council Meeting

'Let's Work as a Team' Nanaimo Mayor's Plea

NANAIMO—At the first full meeting of the new Nanaimo city council under Mayor Pete Maffeo the newly elected chief magistrate asked his aldermen for their fullest co-operation.

Mayor Maffeo, well-known for his sporting activities in this city for many years, used a true sporting expression when he asked council last night "let's work as a team."

He told the council the projects should be divided into two parts during the coming year. City projects, such as fire department, police department, streets and sewers, should be one part and recreation and entertainment the other, he said.

He said that recreation facilities would not take precedence over other projects. He advised those people, who are interested in recreation, that they should run campaigns rather than resort to the by-laws.

In order to carry out the various by-laws which are now slated he asked aldermen to adopt a "hold-the-line" attitude.

City engineer Art Leynard promised a bigger physical development in Nanaimo during 1957.

New aldermen, who were sworn in by Nanaimo Magistrate Lionel Beavor-Potts, were Phil J. Piper, Ed. Hardcastle and George Bryce.

Fraud Suspect Freed on Bail

NANAIMO — Bail of $1,500 was set for Arnold William Jeffrey, Alberni, who was charged with obtaining an automobile from Alexander Motors here by means of a worthless cheque made out for $1,200. He was remanded without plea until Jan. 15.

Wings Clipped

NANAIMO — Five Brannan Lake School boys broke out over the weekend and split into two groups.

Their bid for freedom was short-lived, however, when police picked up three at the Black Ball Ferry in a stolen car about 10 p.m. Sunday night and the other two were apprehended in Nanaimo yesterday morning.

Village Voting Mix Up Officially Ironed Out

Validity of the election of three village commissioners for Tofino last month was questioned by provincial cabinet yesterday but a simple sentence soon straightened things out.

It appears that the nominations and polling at Tofino were not held on the right day under the provincial act. In the polling Erling R. Hagelin, Gawn Moffett and Joseph H. MacLeod received the highest number of votes.

Cabinet settled the matter by appointing the three men village commissioners.

Saanich Council Sits, Locks Horns, Cuts Pay

First act of the 1957 Saanich council was to slice members' pay by 10 per cent.

The action made by recently re-elected Coun. Amelie Worthington was approved over the forced objections of Reeve Arthur Ash and Coun. T. J. O'Neill and Coun. J. Ronald Grant.

The vote gave a clear-cut indication that council would lock horns again on policy decisions in the second, and as announced, the final year of the reeve's tenure in office, as they did in the first.

"If I thought for one minute that I was a detriment to the municipality I would resign without hesitation," the reeve added.

Following the relatively brief but explosive opening session, Coun. Leslie Fass-more commented only that the split-Saanich suggestion "just confirms what we've known all along, the reeve is only promoting his policy of amalgamation."

"I don't know whether or not Coun. Worthington is a student of economics, but in this age of inflation such a move is unrealistic," he said. "Why should councillors or anybody else make a sacrifice . . . ?"

Change of Heart

At this point the reeve threw the chair in favor of Coun. Anslow in order to speak on the issue.

Coun. Worthington defended the sincerity of his motion, urging that money saved in indemnities could be shunted to "the hard-working permanent staff" in the administration.

Cool Customer Collects $1,400 in Bank Robbery

Victoria police were combing the city last night for a tall, well-dressed young man who at noon yesterday held up a teller at the Royal Bank of Canada, Douglas and Cormorant, and made off with about $1,400.

The holdup, which took place at one minute to noon, took about 30 seconds from start to finish and went unnoticed by customers and the rest of the bank staff.

I have a gun. If you have any large bills, hand them over or I'll shoot.

She handed him a few bundles of bills—mostly 10s and 20s with some fives—and the man turned and walked out of the bank. She could not tell if he had a friend or a car waiting outside.

This bank branch, which in another 10 days will move into modern new quarters at Douglas and Pandora, has no central alarm system.

He is between 25 and 30 years old, six feet tall, weighing about 200 pounds, with light brown hair and hazel eyes. He was wearing a heavy brown tweed overcoat and a light brown hat.

The note was not printed, she said, but written in a kind of scrawl. He might have done it just before he came to the wicket or he might have done it before. I just don't know.

Alma Koppel has been a teller at the Douglas and Cormorant branch of the Royal Bank of Canada for about a year, and after her experience at noon yesterday she is sure she's met every situation a teller may face.

With one exception, other employees of the bank branch were somewhat disappointed. Like bank workers everywhere they'd always wondered what it would be like to be held up.

Even while I walked around to tell the accountant what had happened, I kept watching the door to see if the man might not be coming back . . . to say it had just been a joke.

New Fashions Dry Fast

By MARIAN BAHL

Resort fashions tempt not only the winter vacationist these days but those of you who like to shop early. For it is well known that successful resort styles influence summer clothes which follow. For 1956-1957 the easy to care for fabrics are showing a strong influence on the current resort lines.

Fabric people all the makers with some of the wonders they have introduced and so they continually strive to better them. In the resort clothes we see some new materials being used for the first time. One that has drip-dry properties with good fashion is a textured Bemberg yarn which gives the fabric a shantung look and because it is blended with Dacron and cotton it captures the fresh qualities of a batiste weight. There are other easy to care for blends, too, a great deal of linen and silk shown in resort collections. Those with crease-resistant qualities also make valuable additions to the travel wardrobe.

Perfect little dress for holiday is the soft casual shirtwaist dress. Designers show it again and again with easy unpressed pleated skirts. Bodices range from the tailored to tucked and lace inset front detailing. Sleeves are fuller on many and in sheers—voluminous in many instances. The sheath dress remains important and is casually styled for daytime to more festive treatments for after dark. Many of these have soft details at the bodice or hipline. They show in many instances the new soft "peg-top" lines in gentle fullness. Many have matching sweater tops to the [illegible] for the [illegible] Pretty people all the [illegible] Pretty neckline [illegible] interest and points of [illegible] even the new [illegible] White with touches of navy blue or red, beige to deeper wine and red and green stripes appear in many colorings. The new clothes designed for resort and cruise wear will not only serve you well on your winter holiday but they will be just as smart again next summer. This softly casual dress is in a new drip-dry fabric called 'Antigo' which is an easy-to-care-for blend of Bemberg, Dacron and cotton.

TV TALK

By Bruce Lowther

That was about as good a weekend as a TViewer can expect.

For example, television news reporting often leaves a story untold, but Ed Murrow's See It Now on the race problems of Clinton, Tenn., not only told the full story, it also left the viewer astounded by its worth.

"My category is 'Horror Movies'."

Imagine a town [illegible] the principal must investigate his house from front to back after getting home from work. Imagine a man with the reasonable attitude and twisted words of segregationist John Kasper.

What hit hardest was the bit with segregationist Clem Dishman, who voiced his hatred very reasonably, then invited the reporter to "come back anytime" and "have a cup of coffee."

See It Now was so good it took many people away from the fine interviews with Marian Anderson, Helen Keller and other famed women on Wide Wide World. The clash was unfortunate.

★ ★ ★

CBS came up with an amusing new series Friday. Mr. Adams and Eve with husband and wife Howard Duff and Ida Lupino acting as husband and wife.

First Show was very funny. If these professionals can keep up the standard, this could be one of the best. However on the same night, NBC's new Blondie Show was as dull as they come.

Also this weekend camera work for the new NHL hockey series was excellent and CBC's new Odyssey sensibly added acting to the action techniques of Wide Wide World.

Channel 12 was unable to show the McBoing Boing show, pleading network difficulties.

★ ★ ★

A quiet night tonight. Columnist Tom Ettery of The Daily Colonist chairs a round table talk on, "What do we want from the Canada Council?" channel 2. Tic and Charlie Ruggles and Natalie Wood appear at 7 on a Subway" (channel 5 same time). . . Otherwise it's Bilko Wyatt Earp To Tell the Truth and Skelton.

Today's Best

7.30—B.C. Round Table (channel 2); "Girl on a Subway" (channel 5); Harry James and Betty Grable appear on Trust Your Wife? (channels 11 and 12).

8.00—Phil Silvers seems better every week (channels 11 and 12).

8.30—Wyatt Earp, one of the best TV westerns (channel 5).

9.00—Third week of To Tell The Truth (channels 11 and 12).

9.30—George Raft visits Red Skelton (channel 11).

10.00—Explorations, CBC's ultra-arty show, looks good. Theme is "Goodbye to Utopia" — predictions of things to come by Plato, Samuel Butler, Zamyatin and others (channels 2 and 6).

Sport Specials

9:00—Texas wrestling (channel 13).

11:15—Bowling (channel 2).

Movie Lineup

10:00—"Chicago Calling," channel 5.

12.00—"The Sudden Truth," channel 4.

12.30—"Captain Boycott," channel 5.

1.30—"Woman on the Run," channel 12. Ann Sheridan.

2.05—"Common Law," channel 13.

2.15—"Easy Money," channel 2.

3.00—"Miranda," channel 5. Glynis Johns as a mermaid. However, channel 5 listings seem a little off these days.

3.30—"52nd Street" or "Scatterbrain," channel 12.

3.45—No title, channel 4.

7.30—"Powder Town," channel 13. Victor McLaglen, Edmund O'Brien. Again at 1 a.m.

10.10—"Friends and Lovers," channel 13, made in 1941 with Laurence Olivier, Adolphe Menjou, Erich von Stroheim.

10.35—"Eternally Yours," channel 12. Loretta Young, David Niven.

10.15—"Portrait of Jenny," channel 5. Jennifer Jones.

11.00—"No Escape," channel 11, may be changed.

Trail Faces Mass Layoff Of 3,500 Men

TRAIL (CP) — [illegible] said last night that a major cut of about 3,500 men would be made either Tuesday or Wednesday at the huge Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company due to the CPR strike.

About 300 men have been laid off by the company in Trail, Kimberley, Fife, Oliver and Calgary. Hardest hit has been Trail, where about 210 are out of work.

Trail merchants, who are directly or indirectly dependent on the Cominco payroll, are reporting a serious cut down in their sales.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Cargo from incoming ships has clogged National Harbor Board piers here and port officials Monday issued an appeal to importers to clear the docks.

Meanwhile, layoffs began during the weekend at Alberta Wheat Pool terminal elevators, largest in Vancouver, which is served only by the CPR.

TORONTO (CP)—The International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.), saying 600 Ontario miners have already been laid off by the Canadian Pacific Railway strike, Monday called on the CPR to settle it and also criticized the company and the government for attempting "to obscure the real issue. . . ."

CHICAGO (CP) — Daniel P. Loomis, spokesman for the association of western railways, said Monday that firemen have been employed on diesel locomotives in the United States since 1937.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Farmers' cash income from grain has dried up at more than 1,000 Prairie points served only by the CPR as grain delivery to their already bulging elevators has shuddered to a standstill as a result of strike action against the railway.

Movement of grain from glutted prairie farms at these points, has been stifled by grain already in storage in plugged country elevators and terminals. The Canadian Wheat Board announced in Winnipeg Monday as the strike entered its fifth day, that no policy has been made to permit deliveries to CNR stations. A board official said CNR elevators are "too overloaded" to make such a move possible.

By The Canadian Press

First airlift to a town isolated by the Canadian Pacific Railway strike was made Monday as the dispute entered its sixth day.

Townspeople in White River, a community of 204 north of Lake Superior in Ontario, hired a plane to bring food from Marathon, 45 miles west.

Only other community to issue a distress call was Saint John, N.B., whose Common (city) Council declared an emergency in the city Saturday. Mayor W. W. Macaulay said a lengthy strike would turn Saint John into a "ghost city," and prayers were said in Roman Catholic churches for an end to the tieup.

WINNIPEG (BUP)—The Canadian Pacific Railway strike was still termed an "inconvenience" yesterday rather than a dislocation in the Greater CPR as grain delivery to Winnipeg area

Cushion for Crashes

Happier landings in case of a crash are the purpose of the micro-moisture pneumatic safety cushion demonstrated here by its designer, Assen Jordanoff of New York, a pioneer aviator. The cushion, which is being studied by military and civil aviation authorities, is installed in the back of airplane seats. By throwing a single switch, the pilot can inflate a planeful in three seconds. Dog shows how a child on a parent's lap would be protected.—(CPC)

Manslaughter Charge Faces City Driver

A charge of manslaughter was read in city police court yesterday to Belton Frank Turner, 34, of 5021 Santa Clara, in the death Saturday night of John William Youson, 76, of 748 Esquimalt Road.

Turner was remanded to Jan. 14 to set date for trial. Bail was fixed at $5,000.

Mr. Youson, a well-known city sportsman, was fatally injured while crossing Esquimalt Road near Rothwell, at 6.20 p.m. Saturday.

Inquest into his death will be held today at 10.30 a.m. at McCall Brothers' funeral home. Funeral services will take place Wednesday at 1.30 p.m.

An inquest will be held Wednesday at 10 a.m. at Hayward's in the death of three-year-old Michelle Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald B. Elliott, 614 Baker.

The child died Saturday evening of injuries sustained Thursday when she ran into the path of a car on Glanford.

Her funeral will take place at 3.15 p.m. Wednesday at Hayward's.

Mrs. M. E. Service Dies in California

Mrs. Mary Emmeline Service, charter member of the Lake Hill Women's Institute, oldest in B.C., and an almost life-long worker for the Red Cross here, died suddenly last night while visiting a daughter in Inglewood, Calif.

Besides her two sons and six daughters, all of whom were educated in Victoria, Mrs. Service leaves 22 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Born in Burton-on-Trent, England, Mrs. Service was married in Regina to George L. Service, a young officer in the then Royal Northwest Mounted Police, who served with distinction in the Riel Rebellion and in the First World War. Mr. Service died in retirement in 1925.

MRS. M. E. SERVICE

He and his family had settled here on a beautiful litle farm at Lake Hill after he left the mounted police. It was at this time Mrs. Service helped organize the women's institute in that area, in 1903.

WAR SERVICE

Mrs. Service was always proud of her family's military service—she had four brothers as well as her husband in the 1914-18 war.

A son and four sons-in-law served in the last war.

Funeral arrangements are not yet complete but in the hands of B.C. Funeral Chapel. Burial will be in the family plot, Ross Bay.

Her immediate family comprises: Gerald and Ronald, at Trail, B.C.; Mrs. A. T. Cowley, Victoria; Mrs. Thomas Shillingford, Fleming, Sask.; Mrs. J. R. Pyper, Kamloops; Mrs. J. B. B. Shaw, West Saanich; Mrs. Roger Coughland, Yakima, Wash., and Mrs. Frank Cramer, Inglewood, Calif.

Overseas Travel Bookings Good

Victoria travel bureaus are experiencing a "rapid increase" in the number of bookings for overseas trips, officials said yesterday.

Statement came after receipt of a report from the European Travel Commission, a group of tourist bureaus in 27 countries, that "there is no gas rationing for tourists, there is abundant fuel and the heating situation is normal."

Travel bureau head C. E. Blaney said persons taking cars to Great Britain or buying cars there are restricted to 1,200 miles in those vehicles, "but those who hire cars have virtually unrestricted mileage."

In France, tourists are allowed five gallons of gasoline a day to a maximum of 50 gallons. Gasoline is rationed in Ireland, but not in Italy. The Netherlands, Spain, Sweden, Germany, Switzerland and many other nations.

Students Roused By Rape-Slaying

SIKESTON, Mo. (AP) — Students demonstrated Monday against attending classes—with Negroes as police sought new leads in the Saturday night slaying of a high school football player and the rape of his girl friend.

Authorities took precautionary measures against possible trouble. The state highway patrol moved in extra troops, armed with tear gas guns and other riot equipment. But no violence was reported. The girl has described the slayer-rapist as a Negro.

Two Negroes were arrested Sunday for questioning. One, Claude Lightsey, a 61-year-old handyman, was given a lie detector test.

Police said the test indicated Lightsey had nothing to do with the case. The other Negro was identified by authorities as a friend of Lightsey. His name was never disclosed.

The slain boy was John Malugen, 18-year-old co-captain of the Charleston high school football team. Charleston is 14 miles east of here.
